Blog-a-thon.... the day after #1

Just kidding, just kidding. I thought I would give myself at least a day or two after the blog-a-thon ended, but here I am. I just couldn't resist.

I received the following email from one of my followers- so inspiring. If you missed the video she is referring to, here it is again: No Arms, No Legs, No Worries.

Your blog has been so wonderful- I love all the little stories and videos that make me stop and awe! So clearly, your blog-a-thon has touched my life but.....I am happy to report that it also inspired two 9 year old boys.

When your link to "no arms-no legs-no worries" was sent I "MADE" my son watch it- he watched quietly without much commenting and then went about his business of play. I assumed that it was -in and out- like most of what I tell/share with him. About a week later (tonight) he was playing with a friend and requested to show his friend the video. WOW- I was impressed. Then his friend asked, "is it scarey, freaky?" Brayton replies, "NO, it's amazing, he is soooo cool!"

So proud of my little man for seeing the strength! So grateful for you for guiding me to share such information with him.

Keep on blogging!
