Blog-a-thon Day 10

If you have been following the Kyle saga, I am delighted to announce that he re-entered the earth's atmosphere yesterday afternoon at approximately 3:30 PM and is completely back to his sweet, peaceful, hungry self. Apollo 2011 has landed, we have destroyed the craft, and we are hoping this was the last mission.

I received two very inspiring emails yesterday. I so love hearing from you, dear readers so please keep sending your comments. If you are on the website and trying to make a comment on a specific post, please note that it goes to me for approval before it will post (and occasionally, it still doesn't post). So feel free to send your comment directly to me. Yes, technology is great when it works.

This inspiration from a special friend of mine arrived in my email box at the perfect time.

If the word &quot;gratitude&quot; begins wearing thin, you can borrow my 2011 word, &quot;believe.&quot; Believe that Kyle will get better soon. Believe that you will be able to get out and do all the things that make you happy. Believe that your blog posts bring inspiration to people every day, even those without special needs children. (They do!) Believe that you have friends who are thinking about you and sending positive thoughts. Believe that we will soon go to lunch to celebrate your upcoming birthday. Or, if you can't get out, I will bring lunch to you. :)

So if you are needing a word for today, I'd say &quot;believe&quot; is an outstanding choice.

&quot;You can't wait for inspiration. You have to go after it with a club.&quot;
