I belong to an online writing club. It's all about writing just for fun, simply to experience the joy of allowing the creative juices to flow. We permit ourselves to post first drafts and crappy writing. It's a place to feel safe to express without editing. It is liberating to let the words spill on to the page. I'm trying to loosen up and be lighter and sillier, though it doesn't often work out that way.

Twice a week we receive a prompt with which we are free to fly in whatever direction we desire. Yesterday, Kyle wanted to be in the car so we went for a drive, parked near the desert, and I stole some writing time while he listened to music.

Negative, positive, undecided

Here, there, everywhere

So many ways to see a situation

I see it this way

I see it that way

What is the right way?

Oh yeah, there is no right

Just negative, positive, undecided

Negative, Positive, Undecided

Am I allowed to be undecided

Yes, maybe for a few minutes you are

That is positive

Or is it negative?

Can I vote undecided?

Negative, positive, undecided

I hear the lyrics to a new song

I don't need to decide when I'm singin the negative, positive, undecided blues opera... LA LA LA!!!!

Round and round in my head the thoughts

They keep me up at night

Negative, Positive, Undecided

Negative, positive, undecided

What serves me right now?

What feels right?

Negative, positive, undecided

Always a choice

A choice?

Yup

I'd say THAT'S positive!
